the rules of the institution are necessary to ultimate success.

Young ladies, energy is the great means of success. Work is my moto from the time of my rising in the morning until the time of my lying down at night—work all day long. Incessant work in your sphere will make you healthful, give you that stamina of body and mind that is necessary to success here on this earth, and enable you to look forward rationally and dispassion-ately to that which lies beyond. With this advice I leave you with our friend the lady principal, Miss Taylor, who appreciates, I datesay, the value of energy, of perseverence, of truth-telling, of doing right whatever may befall. Work, tell the truth at all times, and may Heaven prosper the endeavors of this Institution.
